

Traveling Exhibit Sponsorships

About the Program

Missouri Humanities' traveling exhibits bring museum-quality experiences to communities across the state. Designed to be accessible and easy to host, these exhibits explore the people, events, and ideas that have shaped Missouri and the nation through stories, images, and interactive elements. Developed in partnership with organizations like the Smithsonian Institution and higher education institutions across the state, these exhibits are tailored for libraries, museums, and cultural organizations of all sizes. By connecting local perspectives to broader historical themes, these exhibits spark conversation, encourage learning, and help communities see their own stories as part of a larger American narrative.

Your support of Missouri Humanities traveling exhibits helps expand access to the humanities, strengthen rural communities, and amplify cultural preservation through storytelling. We welcome the opportunity to work with you in crafting a custom sponsorship package that aligns with your unique philanthropic goals and giving objectives.
